One of several anti-Hillary Clinton signs hangs near her Brooklyn Heights campaign headquarters. / MILES DIXON, METRO

Hillary Clinton gets busy in Brooklyn

Symbolism. So much to do, so little time — so here's Metro's guide to America's borough.

Former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton's decision to open her national campaign headquarters in Brooklyn Heights is rife with symbolism — right down to the address of the building and the name of two adjoining streets near it.

Clinton announced her bid for the White House Sunday in an online video.

The New York Times' Mike Grynbaum was among the first to notice that HQ Hil at One Pierrepont Plaza intersects with Clinton Street, which a block away rounds the bend to become Tillary Street.

Metro has found another possible symbol in the names: "Pierrepont" is the name of a powerful New York family that helped build the city and the nation.

Hezekiah Beers Pierrepont helped lay out and develop the neighborhood in the early 1800s, when the only way to get to Manhattan was by ferry — the Brooklyn Bridge didn't open until 1883.

But perhaps more important, his descendant, Edwards Pierrepont, a powerful Democrat and judge in his day, worked tirelessly in the Civil War era to keep the less perfect union together.

He raised money to campaign in crucial border states to keep them on the side of the North, and crossed party lines in the 1860s to back President Abraham Lincoln, a Republican, in his efforts to heal America after the bloody internecine conflict.

Forest City Ratner, the company that owns the 659,000-square-foot Brooklyn Heights tower that Clinton has rented two full floors in, declares the building to have "Modern Offices. Brooklyn Cool."

Setting up shop

- "Brooklyn is a snapshot of America," said Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams. "Its diversity, its struggle and its promise are instructive to any leader seeking to advance our nation, especially someone running for our highest office."
- Brooklyn Heights is mostly white and the average income in 2011 was $166,346.
- When Clinton ran for the White House in 2008, her headquarters were in Arlington, Virginia.

Quoted

"I think it's awesome that she's running. I don't vote by party, but by platform. We don't get a lot of visits from the DNC. Let's have our first woman president. It's time."

Stephanie Swensen
48, Mapleton, Utah

"I'm probably going to vote for her. I'm kind of bummed there are not that many options. I know it's early, but it's kind of concerning to me there's already been a Clinton, there's already been numerous Bushes and [there is the] possibility of another Bush. There's a lot of people that are qualified in the country and it's amazing that it's two families."

Michael Newton, 41, Brooklyn

"I just know that Obama is president. I don't really follow politics."

Ricky Rodriguez, 25, Bay Ridge

Marty must-dos. Former borough president weighs in Metro asked former Brooklyn Borough President Marty Markowitz for just a few Brooklyn must-do's for Hillary Clinton, but once you wind up Markowitz on the subject of Brooklyn, there's no stopping the 70-year-old longtime public servant. Markowitz, by the way, is now vice president of borough promotion and engagement for NYC & Company, the city's tourism agency.

The Brooklyn Heights Promenade, Brooklyn Bridge Park and Coney Island top his list.

"The boardwalk, the rides and, of course, the obligatory frankfurter at Nathan's, naturally, and the french fries," Markowitz said of the amusement park.

Let's not forget grub.

"We have a billion restaurants in Brooklyn," he says. "Junior's would be a must and I am ready to share a slice of strawberry cheesecake anytime [Clinton] wants."

Markowitz also thinks Hillary would enjoy Noodle Pudding.

"It would be an interesting one. It's in Brooklyn Heights. It's a Northern Italian restaurant and doesn't serve noodle pudding," he says.

Clinton should also stop by Roll-N-Roaster, Smorgasburg and Brennan and Carr, Markowitz said.

Some other spots he recommends she check out include Sunset Park, the historic black churches in Bed-Stuy and the Christian Cultural Center in Flatlands.

One of his favorite spots, though, is Victorian Flatbush: "'Sophie's Choice' was filmed there. It's a beautiful area."

Drunken driving

Off-duty MTA bus driver arrested on DUI charges

An off-duty MTA bus driver was arrested early Sunday in Coney Island on drunk driving and speeding charges, police said.

Dwayne Chambliss, 47, was arrested around 2:15 a.m. at the 60th Precinct in Coney Island.

Charges include driving while intoxicated, aggravated unlicensed operator, operating a motor vehicle with greater than .08. His blood alcohol level was allegedly .097. METRO

Trio sought in Bronx gym beating

Police are looking for a group of suspects who beat two people with chairs and sticks after chasing them into a gym last month in the Bronx.

The victims, a 21-year-old man and 16-year-old, were in the area of Kingsbridge Road and East 194 St. around 9 p.m. on March 17 when a mob of seven to nine men and two women began hitting them.

The suspects pursued the pair into a Planet Fitness gym, where the three suspects pictured allegedly continued to beat them with sticks and chairs.

The victims were treated for head lacerations. METRO

Clinton officially in for race to White House

Presidential bid. "Hillary 2016" is official.

Are you mentally prepared for the 2016 presidential campaign? / GETTY IMAGES

Hillary Clinton, the former secretary of state, senator and first lady announced her 2016 bid for president with a YouTube video on Sunday afternoon.

In the video, "Getting Started," Clinton says she wants to be a "champion" for the everyday American.

"Americans have fought their way back from tough economic times, but the deck is still stacked in favor of those at the top," Clinton said in the video, which features a diverse cast of characters.

The announcement came as reporters set up camp outside her Brooklyn campaign office on Sunday, expecting a 12 p.m. announcement that never came. The confusion sparked more than one hashtag on Twitter speculating #WhyHillaryisLate. An email from her campaign chairman, John Podesta, was reportedly sent to donors and reporters before the video went live.

Clinton lost the Democratic bid to President Barack Obama in 2008. Clinton said she's planning to travel to Iowa this week for campaigning.

Analysis

De Blasio blasé about Clinton's announcement

An assumed ally, Mayor Bill de Blasio, who managed Clinton's senate campaign in 2000, told host Chuck Todd on "Meet the Press" on Sunday morning that he'd like to see a candidate with a "clear bold vision for progressive economic change," and that he's not ready to endorse a candidate until he sees an "actual vision of where they want to go."

Cops seek Brooklyn stabbing suspect

Police are looking for a man they say is responsible for stabbing and killing a 21-year-old Brooklyn man early Sunday.

Kevin Rivera was found with a stab wound to the chest around 2:17 a.m. after officers responded to a call of an assault with a knife at a Bushwick apartment .

Police are looking for Nicolas Dias, 81, who is wanted in connection with Rivera's death. METRO

Brooklyn. Town hall to address relations between cops, people

Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams at the memorial where two NYPD officers were shot and killed. MILES DIXON/ METRO

Brooklyn Borough President Eric L. Adams and civil rights attorney Norman Siegel are hosting a town hall meeting Monday evening aimed at strengthening police and community relations.

The talk, which starts at 6 p.m. Monday at the New Lots Library, 665 New Lots Ave. in East New York, was planned in response to the shooting death of Walter Scott in North Charleston, South Carolina last week.

Dash camera and amateur video show Scott running from Police Officer Michael Slager, who had pulled him over for a traffic stop. Video then showed Slager shooting Scott. The officer has since been fired and arrested on murder charges. The incident has reignited a national dialogue between police and communities of color.

Adams and Siegel teamed up last month to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Selma marches by leading a walk across the Brooklyn Bridge.

Pope sparks row with Turkey over genocide remarks

Pope Francis attends an Armenian-Rite Mass at St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican marking 100 years since the mass killings of Armenians under the Ottoman Empire. / GETTY IMAGES

Controversy. Turkey recalls its ambassador to the Vatican after pope calls massacre of Armenians "genocide."

Pope Francis sparked a diplomatic row on Sunday by calling the massacre of up to 1.5 million Armenians 100 years ago "the first genocide of the 20th century," prompting Turkey to accuse him of inciting hatred.

Muslim Turkey accepts that many Christian Armenians died in clashes with Ottoman soldiers beginning in 1915, when Armenia was part of the empire ruled from Istanbul, but denies hundreds of thousands were killed and that this amounted to genocide.

At an Armenian rite Mass in St. Peter's Basilica to mark the 100th anniversary of the mass killings, Francis became the first head of the Roman Catholic Church to publicly pronounce the word "genocide" to describe them.

Some European and South American countries use the term to describe the killings, but the United States and some others, keen to maintain good relations with an important ally, avoid doing so.

Turkey was swift to protest. "The pope's statements, which are far from historical and judicial facts, cannot be accepted," Foreign Minister Mevlut Cavusoglu said on his Twitter account.

"Religious offices are not places to incite hatred and revenge with baseless accusations," he said.

The foreign ministry called its ambassador to the Holy See back to Ankara, and summoned the Vatican's ambassador, saying Francis' remarks had caused a "problem of trust" in diplomatic relations.

Pope John Paul II and Armenian Apostolic Church Supreme Patriarch Kerekin II called the massacre "the first genocide of the 20th century" in 2001, but that was in a joint written statement.

Francis, who has disregarded many aspects of protocol since becoming pope two years ago, uttered the phrase during a private meeting at the Vatican with an Armenian delegation in 2013, prompting a strong protest from Ankara. REUTERS

Kerry says he stands by presentation of nuke deal

Iran. The secretary of state defends the agreement on the nuclear deal.

Secretary of State John Kerry defended on Sunday his presentation of a framework agreement on Iran's nuclear program after a different interpretation was offered by Iran's supreme leader, and a prominent U.S. senator said Kerry was "delusional."

"I will stand by every fact that I have said," Kerry told ABC's "This Week."

Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei had strong words last week about Iran's agreement with major world powers, declaring that once a final deal was reached it should result in an immediate end to all sanctions on Iran.

Kerry has said the sanctions would be suspended in phases.

"You know, they're going to put their spin on their point of view, and obviously they'll allege that we're putting a spin on our point of view," Kerry said of the Iranian comments.

There were also differing U.S. and Iranian interpretations of a previous interim agreement with Iran, but Iran upheld that agreement, Kerry said.

Iran and major world powers — the United States, Britain, France, Germany, Russia and China — reached a framework nuclear agreement on April 2 that would curb Iran's nuclear program and prevent it from being able to develop a bomb, in exchange for the West lifting economic sanctions. REUTERS

Friendly fire

Kerry to address naysayers in Congress

Kerry noted that President Barack Obama on Saturday delivered a public rebuke to Republican Sen. John McCain for having called Kerry "delusional" in an interview in which McCain questioned whether Kerry was being forthcoming about the deal.

Kerry added that Russia, not a U.S. ally, had issued a statement saying that the facts about the deal as expressed by the United States were "reliable and accurate information."

Kerry, who will brief Congress on the deal on today and Tuesday, warned lawmakers not to put in place any conditions that would impede implementation of the Iran deal. The framework is meant to be the basis of a final agreement to be reached by the end of June. REUTERS

1 Bomb attacks in Egypt kill 13

Two separate bomb attacks targeting security forces in Egypt's Sinai peninsula killed at least 13 people and wounded dozens on Sunday, the latest in a wave of violence in a region hit by an Islamist insurgency.

Egypt's military said a roadside bomb detonated by militants killed six soldiers and wounded two others in an attack on an armored military vehicle in the town of Sheikh Zuweid. Two of those killed were officers, it said.

The army said in a statement that "terrorist and extremist elements" were behind the blast and that two of those killed were officers.

Later Sunday, a car bomb targeting a police station in al-Arish, the capital of the North Sinai governorate, killed at least seven people and wounded 44, medical sources said. REUTERS

2 Obama meets Raul Castro

President Barack Obama met Cuban President Raul Castro on Saturday in the highest-level talks between the two countries in nearly 60 years, and the two men agreed to push ahead on improving relations after decades of hostility.

Describing their private meeting as "historic," Obama said the two countries can now end the antagonism of the Cold War era, although he said he would continue to pressure the communist-led country on democracy and human rights.

They met in Panama, where they both attended a summit of leaders from across the Americas. REUTERS

Seniors find new easy to use tablet with Free Unlimited Internet irresistible

It's just what seniors have been waiting for; a very easy to use computer with no contracts or Internet bills that comes with Free Unlimited Internet, big touch buttons, large screen, loud speakers, magnified words and a $99 price tag that's a real steal after a hundred dollar instant rebate

What's the catch: Rebates are not available in any stores. Consumers have just 2 days to call the National Rebate Center Hotline to order up to 3 new tablets (5 if you have children or grandchildren in school) and get an instant rebate for each one as long as consumers order by phone within the next 2 days at: 1-888-507-6296 EXT. 70205

ENDLESS HOURS OF FUN: The phone lines are ringing off the hook. That's because the Pre-Store release of the all new Android Senior Simple Tablet that comes with Free Unlimited Internet begins at precisely 8:30am this morning. "I'm so happy I got the new Senior Simple Tablet. It's so easy to use. I didn't need help from anyone. I just pushed the 'On' button and I was off to the races playing games, emailing my grandchildren, reading the news and exploring the Internet for free. I just love it! And the best part is, I got such a good deal I was able to order one for each of my grandchildren too," said Shirley Frances. The only thing consumers need to do is call the National Rebate Center Hotline at 1-888-507-6296 EXT. 70205 beginning at precisely 8:30am this morning. Everyone who does is getting the all new 7" Android Senior Simple Tablet with a full year of Free Unlimited Internet for just $99 and shipping after a hundred dollar instant rebate just as long as they call within the next 2 days.

NATIONWIDE – The phone lines are ringing off the hook.

That's because it's a deal too good to pass up. Starting at precisely 8:30am this morning the Pre-Store Release of the World's only tablet that comes with a full year of Free Unlimited Internet begins.

"We've never seen anything like it. Consumers absolutely love the low price, Free Unlimited Internet for a full year and most of all, how easy it is to use," said David O'Neill, Director of Research and Development for U.S. based Tech Giant Federated Consumer Products.

The all new 7" Android Senior Simple Tablet is that rarest of combinations: a top rated performer that's also an extremely great value. We were impressed by how easy the tablet is to use, the high speed browsing and crystal clear high definition display, but even more so by its ridiculously low price tag of just $99 and shipping after a hundred dollar instant rebate.

Better still, that price includes a full year of Free Unlimited Internet – including a Cortex A8 Dual-Core Processor, dual facing cameras and a micro USB port – which makes the all new Android tablet a great choice for seniors, students, professionals and beginners alike.

And here's the best part. The all new 7" Android Senior Simple Tablet comes with the magic of a four or five hundred dollar tablet, but at a $99 price tag that's a real steal after a hundred dollar instant rebate plus a full year of Free Unlimited Internet.

The new Senior Simple Tablet makes it easy to surf the Internet, play games, check weather, news, manage a household, video chat with friends and family, make phone calls, watch movies and TV shows, share pictures from your camera – free from any technology hassles.

"So if you've felt left out of the big computer party, if you've ever felt it was too complicated or expensive, consider the all new Senior Simple Tablet the computer for you. Or, even if you know nothing about computers and just want to give one to your children or grandchildren as a gift, it's all good," said O'Neill.

To the casual observer, the tablet slugfest has come down to two main combatants: Apple®, with its iPad, and Samsung®, with its Galaxy line. But, the reality is heavyweight Federated Consumer Products, the U.S. based Tech Giant just delivered a knockout blow sending top rated contenders iPad and Samsung to the mat unveiling the World's only tablet with Free Unlimited Internet.

The all new Android Senior Simple Tablet certainly boasts a long list of positives, starting with a sleek handsome design that speaks to the premium quality of Federated Consumer Product's latest flagship. And the Senior Simple Tablet has a splendid high definition screen (384,000 pixels), robust Cortex A8 Dual-Core Processor and powerful speakers excellent not only for listening to music but also for using the built in cell phone.

The New Senior Simple Tablet also has a camera capable of producing fine quality photographs, even when you're shooting in low light. And a large capacity Photo Gallery for showing off those photos.

The migration to tablets is a continuation of an "operating system shift" away from traditional desktop PCs says O'Neill.

O'Neill added that the shift to tablets "marks a significant change in consumer attitudes about computer devices and the applications and ecosystems that power them."

"For many consumers, a tablet is a much simpler and easier solution for core-use cases that were previously addressed by the PC," O'Neill says.

"The PC is the equivalent of the land-line phone," O'Neill says. "What do you need it for?"

The new Android Senior Simple Tablet is one powerful tablet, packed with extraordinary functionality that is extremely easy to use. Thanks to the fast CPU and a massive (384,000) pixel resolution, users can run their most important Apps with virtually no lag time and the Free Unlimited Internet connection makes it easy to check emails and browse the Internet while on the road.

As for specs, the all new Android features Wi-Fi and 4 gigabytes of flash memory, micro SD card slot and Android 4.2 Jellybean.

The new Android device is a tablet and a laptop: multiple processor, RAM and storage options intersect with a sleek design that, with a simple swoop and click of the optional keyboard, transform the device from a perfectly balanced tablet to a full-functioning laptop and back again – all in a beautiful package that is sleek and thin. Its new sturdy kickstand and stunning 7-inch display provide the screen real estate and multiple viewing angles people need for work and play.

"So many people carry both a laptop and a tablet but really just need one device that serves all purposes," said O'Neill.

The all new Senior Simple Tablet can replace your laptop – packaging all the functionality of a fully powered laptop into a thin, lightweight and beautifully designed device. You'll love being able to carry a single device for your next class, workday, or weekend getaway knowing you have all the power you need.

Thousands of consumers are expected to call the National Rebate Center to get the new Android Senior Simple Tablet before the 2-day rebate deadline ends.

So if lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered.

Just turn it on and start playing, it's that easy

THE BOTTOM LINE:

Shop around if you want to, but we've done all the leg work. This deal's too good to pass up. The all new 7" Android Senior Simple Tablet is a real steal at just $99 and shipping after a hundred dollar instant rebate with no Internet bills.

PROS: It's the World's only tablet that comes with a full year of Free Unlimited Internet. That's a savings of over three hundred dollars for consumers making this deal irresistible. Plus it's very easy to use and comes loaded with all the bells and whistles you'll ever need including Wi-Fi in a sleek little, lightweight state of the art design.

CONS: Consumers can't get the instant rebate in stores. That's why it's so important to call the National Rebate Center Hotline at: 1-888-507-6296 EXT. 70205 within the next 2 days. Otherwise, this sleek little powerhouse tablet will set you back over two hundred dollars.

Should conversion

Interview. Dr. Michael Friedman explains what you need to know about this practice.

President Barack Obama called for an end to conversion therapy for LGBT youths on Wednesday. Though he did not call for a federal law banning the practice, he did make a statement through his adviser Valerie Jarrett that conversion therapy is "neither medically nor ethically appropriate and can cause substantial harm." We talked to Dr. Michael Friedman, Ph.D., about how conversion therapy is administered and what President Obama's statement means for LGBT youths.

Can you tell me more about conversion therapy?

Everything about gay conversion therapy is based on a false premise. It starts off with the false premise that there's something wrong with being gay, bi or trans, and that's probably the most powerful message of this treatment. There was a time where being gay was considered a mental disorder, and this was decades ago, but that premise that there's something wrong with LGBT is false. There's no evidence that there's anything wrong with being LGBT — there's no psychological or medical problem.

Secondly, there's no evidence that sexuality is a choice or something that can be changed. And the third false is most profound: There's absolutely no evidence that this works. There's none that's been presented in front of respected research institutions — it would be rejected by most ethics boards. There are false premises and a false promise. Everything about this approach is based on a lie. What is true, though, is that this approach — both the philosophy and practice — is something that is very much akin to other forms of discrimination and bullying that LGBT people face. They're showing that there's something wrong with being LGBT and that it's a choice. These are all different aspects of discrimination. It's basically bullying masquerading as medical practice. There are parents and medical organizations and other organizations that support this kind of treatment that are all basically doing to children what everyday schoolyard bullies do to make them feel bad about being LGBT and in some cases, subjecting them to horrible things.

So we've talked about the premise — what is the practice?

It can vary. Historically there was a premise that there's a problem — it's one of the common psychoanalytic theories — that a gay person had an overbearing mother and distant father. If that were the case, everybody would be gay. So there were theories that hadn't been proven. They'd use psychoanalytic therapy to uncover the conflict that is somehow leading you to be LGBT; it could be that kind of therapy. There's aversion therapy, where you try to pair same-sex images with something that's physically not pleasurable or disgusting. There's the "pray your gay away" approach with ongoing counseling. There's a range of different practices that might be used; some may not seem harmful except when you go to the underlying premise that there's something wrong with being gay and let's do something to change that.

Consequences

What do you think the impact will be?

I'm hoping it will be on multiple levels. There are millions of LGBT kids and adults out there who have been told there's something wrong with them. I hope this at the very least is a powerful statement from the president of the United States saying there's nothing wrong with you; you don't need to change; you're good the way you are.

That in and of itself is an incredibly powerful and important message. That's huge – that's not been said before by a sitting president. I think he's also bringing to light that every major organization condemns this practice and the more people hear that, the more they're like, "Oh, it's not just the president giving his belief; let's look into it; there's no evidence of this. It's not a mental health disorder."

I think that's a powerful message to LGBT people and non-LGBT people that this is a charade and the light is being shined on it.

1 The Timber-baby has cometh

Glad tidings to the Biel-Timberlake household, as Jessica Biel gave birth to her and husband Justin Timberlake's first baby — a boy — late last week, according to People magazine. The new parents are "ecstatic" about the new arrival, named Silas Randall Timberlake — which, as celebrity baby names go, is pretty damn reasonable. The couple reportedly kept the sex of the baby a surprise until the actual arrival, which is adorable but must've made shopping for baby shower gifts a nightmare. Last we heard from Timberlake was at the iHeartRadio Music Awards on March 29, when he offered a message straight to Biel from the stage: "I can't wait to see our greatest creation yet," he said while accepting the Innovator Award. "Daddy's heading home right now to innovate by learning how to change a poopy diaper and get my swaddle on."

2 Bieber has a warrant in Argentina

Try as he might to mount a full-on character rehabilitation tour, Justin Bieber's messy past just won't leave him alone. For instance, there's now a warrant out for his arrest in Argentina, with a judge in Buenos Aires ordering that the Canadian pop terror be locked up should he ever step foot in the country again. The order stems from a 2013 incident during which Bieber and one of his bodyguards allegedly attacked a photographer while the "Baby" singer was leaving a nightclub. Another judge had ordered Bieber to appear for questioning about it back in November, he apparently didn't get the message. So wait, how many countries is Bieber not allowed back to anymore at this point?

Even Argentina has its limits.

3 Blake Lively's baby does not have three godmothers

So that story about how Blake Lively had named all three of her "Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants" co-stars as godmothers for her new daughter, James? Yeah, not so much. "I never named them my godmothers. They're my dear friends. I would say my baby has a lot of fairy godmothers," she clarifies to E! News. Also worth noting: Fairy godmotherhood is not legally binding. Yet. But give it time.

A SISTERHOOD HAS ITS LIMITS.

It's 'Game of Thrones' ... for kids!

We wouldn't put it past George R.R. Martin to do something like this in real life: The ever-procrastinating author teams up with "Conan" to make an intro song for a hypothetical "Game of Thrones" cartoon series for kids called "Lil Thrones" — except it's really not for kids at all, of course. Or for people who are behind on the series, because, hello spoilers. Still, super-catchy and adorable.

WINTER IS BACK: 'GAME OF THRONES' RETURNS

"Thrones" on the Web

WINTER IS COMING

As the editor-in-chief for Winter Is Coming, Dan Selcke spends his time writing about the latest "Game of Thrones" news and preparing for the long night that will have no end.

Read more of him at Winteriscoming.net.

At last, the fifth season of "Game of Thrones" is upon us. The opening episode, "The Wars to Come," finds the characters picking up the pieces after Season 4's finale. It looks like this season will be a bit slower and more contemplative than last year, but it'll still pack in plenty of the textured storytelling that has made the show a hit.

Episode MVPs

After killing his father and lover at the end of last season, Tyrion Lannister (Peter Dinklage) has gone into exile. The guy has hit rock bottom, and Dinklage has a great time scowling, drinking and snarking his way through his scenes. Dinklage has always been one of the show's best assets, and his take on the new, more dour Tyrion is already a highlight.

Meanwhile, at the Wall, Jon Snow (Kit Harington) is dealing with the arrival of Stannis Baratheon (Stephen Dillane) and his hangerson. For the first time in a while, the Wall isn't in danger of attack, so there's room to just let these personalities bounce off each other.

Further east, Daenerys Targaryen (Emilia Clarke) is trying to manage local unrest in Meereen, her new base of operations. While past seasons had her marching from place to place, freeing slaves and siccing her dragons on the unwary, her new story looks like a slow burner.

Questions for next week

"The Wars to Come" was stuffed with story, but Arya Stark (Maisie Williams) sat it out. We'll have to wait to find out what happened to everyone's favorite revenge-bent moppet after she boarded that boat to Braavos. It'll also be interesting to see whether Cersei Lannister (Lena Headey) can keep the Seven Kingdoms running smoothly now that her father is dead. She's got a short fuse and holds onto grudges like they're old friends, so smart money is on no.

Finally, I'm eager to see the show make good on this episode's promise that Tyrion will meet up with Daenerys. "Game of Thrones" often keeps its various plotlines on parallel tracks, so the prospect of two big ones crossing is very exciting.

Remakes

In other news

Those who still can't get enough "Game of Thrones" may be happy to hear there's an Indian remake coming called "Rani Mahal." Producers have already cast the Indian equivalents of Jon Snow, Cersei and Daenerys, and they hope to air the series later this year.

"Fraction Of An Inch" Success And Failure With Popular

Vital Information All Knee Arthritis Sufferers

By Matt Edgar-Health Writer
Manhattan - In just a moment I'm going to tell you about a very "candid" and somewhat embarrassing moment I had with a doctor.

A moment most doctors would not want you to know about.

As I reveal what happened in that moment - it will become clear to you not only why this doctor has so much success treating knee arthritis pain... but you will also discover a possible way to relieve some or all of your pain, too.

But before I tell you all that - let me ask you this: How would you like to finally have a real medical solution for your knee arthritis pain?

Not some scam sold on an infomercial or the internet. A real medical treatment that has already worked for countless people just like you and is covered by most insurance and medicare?

Can you imagine what it would feel like to be able to eliminate enough of your pain and stiffness so you can get out of bed without pain and go for walks and even do things like play golf or tennis?

How relieved would you be if you felt so much better that you no longer needed to go through total knee replacement surgery and all the grueling rehabilitation?

Sounds Too Good To Be True?

I'm glad we agree. It does sound too good to be true. That's because all patients react differently and get different results from real medical treatments.

That's also why no ethical doctor would promise or guarantee ANY results... for ANY treatment. EVER.

In fact - if you do start hearing over-the-top, exaggerated claims like: "cure for knee arthritis" or "eliminates all pain" or "works for everyone" you should run like heck.

But the fact of the matter is: If you qualify for the treatment you are about to discover, there is a good chance you may be able to relieve some or much of your pain.

I know because thousands of knee arthritis sufferers... just like you... have already found the relief you are looking for.

And even better - this might work for you if your pain is new... or if you have advanced knee arthritis that has made it difficult to even walk.

Here's The Treatment And The Embarrassing Moment

The treatment is called viscosupplemtation. If you have not heard of this treatment - I will explain how it might help you in just a moment. If you have heard of it - or even had this treatment without good results - this information is a "must read."

Here is why: When you have arthritis, one of the things that happens is the lubricating fluid in your joints deceases. This causes joint surfaces to rub, then grind against each other which causes swelling and pain eventually eating way at the cartilage.

Researchers have developed a natural lubricating gel that can be placed in the arthritic knee joint - this cushions and coats the joint allowing it to glide more smoothly which often decreases pain. Sometimes dramatically . Treatment with this special lubricating gel is called Viscosupplementation.

Advanced Knee Arthritis Treatment Offers New Hope For Pain Sufferers In New York City

Nothing Spreads The Word Like Caring Doctors and Results - Knee arthritis sufferers have swarmed the OsteoRelief Center in Manhattan, NYC and Norhtern New j Jersey ever since word got out of their advanced medical procedure for knee arthritis

This all sounds great - in theory. But there is a BIG problem with this treatment.

Allow Me To Explain...

While doing research on this treatment, I traveled to a medical clinic in Northern N.J. right outside NYC (they now have clinics in mid town and downtown).. This clinic had an excellent reputation and I got to speak not only with doctors but with several patients who ranted and raved about the results.

Many said they had tried countless other treatments in the past... including viscosupplementation... but nothing worked until they had viscosupplemtation at this clinic.

I was skeptical, so I asked one of the doctors why. How could it be possible that the same treatment that did not work when done elsewhere... was getting results when done here?

His response was honest and a little shocking. And the bottom line was...

"All Doctors Are Human And Sometimes They Mess Up"

I discovered that this treatment must be VERY PRECISE. In other words, the doctor must be very accurate and actually get the lubricating fluid precisely into the arthritic joint space - or the treatment will be rendered useless.

Many doctors do not want to admit it - but it is very easy to miss the joint space and alter the treatment results.

In fact, research shows that doctors doing these types of joint procedures without advanced imaging may miss the joint space as much as 30% of the time.

Technology To The Rescue

Thankfully technology is solving this problem. How? It's making doctors much more accurate and this treatment much more effective.

Advanced imaging is now available that allows doctors to actually see directly into the joint space and watch the treatment. Doctors can see, or check, if the lubricating fluid goes directly into the joint space - or misses.

The doctor knows if the applied treatment has been a success... or failure... INSTANTLY.

The Difference Between Knee Arthritis Treatment?

Should Know... That Might Be Keeping You In Pain

Here's something incredible: I was able to watch many procedures actually being performed and I was shocked at how many times the doctor thought he had perfect placement... but the imaging proved him wrong.

I was amazed how only a fraction of an inch would make the difference between success and failure.

The best thing is: When the procedure was not perfect - because of the imaging - the doctor knew instantly and was able to make the slight change necessary and achieve the results they were looking for hitting the targeted painful knee joint.

"Double Confirmation" For Best Results

That's why the doctors at this clinic have taken it one giant step further to give their patients the best. They do not just use one form of confirmation during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

It became clear to me that using this advanced imaging and "double confirmation" process just might be why the doctors at this medical clinic get results when others were not.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

Who Is This For?

This treatment is not for everyone - but if you qualify you may be able to relieve some or all of your pain. That's why OsteoRelief has a an innovation for you...

Your Invitation

OsteoRelief Centers offer a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get some of their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at OsteoRelief Center. If you would like a complimentary screening, just call 800-227-KNEE (5633) and tell the scheduling expert who answers the phone, "I would like a complimentary knee arthritis screening."

The screenings fill up fast every month. If you do not call in time to get one this month, the expert will schedule you for next month.

This screening is no cost and there is no further obligation. The best thing about this screening for so many is being able to breathe a big sigh of relief because you finally have hope to relieve your pain and get your life back

Many of the treatments offered at OsteoRelief Institute are covered by many insurance plans and Medicare.

Simon Pegg: sharp dressed hitman

Q&A. Simon Pegg suits up for "Kill Me Three Times."

When he's not starring in — and writing — "Star Trek" sequels or marveling at Tom Cruise's stunts in the "Mission: Impossible" films, Simon Pegg likes to relax and unwind in far-off locations like Perth, Australia, and put a few locals out of their misery. Or at least that's what he does as Charlie, a dapper contract killer in "Kill Me Three Times."

My favorite description of Australia is "the most beautiful place in the world that's always trying to kill you." Agree or disagree?
[Laughs] I didn't suffer any attacks when I was there, but yeah, there's quite a lot of deadly stuff there. We were aware that there has been a couple of fatal shark attacks on the coast where we were going to shoot a couple of surfing scenes, where Alice [Braga] and Luke [Hemsworth] were going in. So I was a little worried for them, but there was, thankfully, no assault on our lives.

Luke is the older brother of Chris and Liam Hemsworth. Exactly how many Hemsworths are there out there, and how do we stop them?
I don't know. I feel like they multiply, but I think Luke is probably the brood mother of them all. He spawned the other Hemsworths, and who knows how many there are? I don't know. Luke was very vague about the amount of Hemsworths there are in the world. [Laughs] No, Luke is super-cool. And it's sweet when he talks about his brothers. He's obviously very proud of them and protective of them, and he's clearly the biggest of the three — albeit the stockiest, not the tallest.

Simon Pegg rocks proper desert attire in the black comedy "Kill Me Three Times." / MAGNET RELEASING

How was it being one of the only non-Australian outsiders in this?
It was good. I mean, it felt kind of important to us that Charlie was a strange invader. He's a very incongruous figure in the film. He's incredibly conspicuous, and he doesn't really try not to be. He drives a f—ing huge car, and he wears a black suit and dresses like he thinks a hitman should dress. It's a fun thing to casually walk up a sand dune wearing a Paul Smith suit carrying a rifle. You don't get to do that in real life very often.

You're also rocking quite the handlebar mustache.
It's a good one. It's perfect for the character. It's not entirely flattering, but it just felt right. It's a statement that Charlie makes about himself and his face.

'Eyebrows on fleek'

Style. Benefit Cosmetics opens its first location in the borough.

San Francisco-based beauty brand Benefit Cosmetics, known for its whimsical, girly packaging and cult-favorite products, joined the wave of retailers opening up locations in booming Brooklyn. At their cheery new Cobble Hill location, customers can shop the line or book a beauty service like the house specialty: brow shaping and tinting. We check in with brand ambassadors Maggie and Annie Ford Danielson (their mom, Jean Ford, and their aunt, Jane Ford, founded the company in 2008) to find out why they picked the charming nabe and what we should stock up on.

Benefit Boutique, 168 Court St. 347-464-0804. / PROVIDED

Why Cobble Hill?

"Court Street really has that similar San Francisco vibe: a cool urban energy within a neighborhood," says Annie. "When choosing an area to open a new location, it is so important for us to stay within our roots."

On being neighbors with Hillary Clinton

"We love Ms. Hillary Clinton's choice of moving her campaign to the neighborhood," says Maggie. "She's an inspiration to so many gals. And hey! Maybe she'll come in and get campaign-ready and her brows on fleek!"

On their popular products

"Bright cheeks are amazing, but in order to keep [the look] from looking too young and costume-like, use a tint like our Benetint lip & cheek stain," says Annie. "Tints soak into the top layers of your skin and help the color look more natural rather than just sitting on top of your skin. If you do go the bright-cheek route, make sure to keep the rest of your makeup subtle and simple."

"Brows are the most important feature on the face. Just like your hair, brows can make or break your overall look," says Maggie. "For a quick fix, use a brow volumizing product like Benefit Gimme Brow. It's a brow fiber gel that will actually mimic the look of real hair. It's the fastest way to fake a full and voluminous arch."

HOW TO GET AHEAD

New app helps overly stressed college students

Freaking out over finals? Here's a new way to find a sympathetic ear to turn to.

MEGHAN POOLE
@metronewyork
letters@metro.us

For many students, this time of year is filled with stress and anxiety as they start preparing for finals and lining up their summer plans. While it helps to know that you aren't alone, it's important to take control of your stress.

Psychologist Glen Moriarty believes that college students are more stressed-out today than they were just a few years ago. "There is less support for us today, and we aren't as close as we all used to be," he explains.

To help, Moriarty has created 7 Cups of Tea, a new app that offers emotional support by connecting people with listeners online. The way the free app works is that it connects users with listeners from 150 countries who are willing to help.

We asked Moriarty for some tips for dealing with the stresses of college life:

Talk it out

Simply being able to talk to someone can be helpful when dealing with stress or anxiety. This, he says, was the driving force behind 7 Cups of Tea. He believes in the importance of having somewhere to turn when people need to talk. Whether that person is a trained psychologist, a friend or simply anyone who will listen, it will help reduce stress.

Find out what works best for you

When he was a student, Moriarty says that he did multiple things to reduce stress. "I tried to exercise on a regular basis and talked with other friends who were feeling a little stressed too," he says. Different people can deal with stress many ways, but the important thing is that you are facing your problems head-on in a healthy way.

You don't have to feel alone when you are overwhelmed. ISTOCK

Use group support

7 Cups of Tea also offers group support through chat rooms and forums. "The ultimate idea is to build a mental health system for the Internet and to create a safe place where everyone can feel like they belong," he says. Plus, it may be comforting to realize that other people are going through the same struggles as you are.

How to identify a high-impact internship

Don't waste your summers, find a great position instead.

MOLLY CONGDON
@metronewyork
letters@metro.us

Internships are not easy, especially if you end up spending most of your summer doing grunt work. That's why Eric Woodard — the author of "The Ultimate Guide to Internships: 100 Steps to Get a Great Internship and Thrive in It" — says students need to target what he calls "high-impact" positions to make sure they are on the path to success.

We asked Woodard for his tips for the best way to get a meaningful internship:

Create a career story

"You have to build career capital," Woodard says. "There's a difference between someone who has a résumé that's all over the place and someone who crafted a story. You want to find an internship that contributes to that story."

Mentorship

"Study after study shows that mentorship is key," Woodard says. "You're almost better off finding the not-so-great internship that's at Bob's Tackle Shop — not the shiniest — but if Bob is the best mentor in the world, that's better than doing an internship at a more impressive company."

Be Yourself

"If you are really genuine in your application, very good internship hosts are going to be attracted to that," Woodard says. "For example,

The ideal internship is one where you can contribute meaningfully. ISTOCK

I ran into a situation recently where an applicant wrote us and said, 'Hey, there's an error on your website.' He's putting himself out there — that's brave. That's going to make your résumé a compass to point in the right direction and a magnet to really attract great internships."

Look for signs

"If you're applying to an internship, you look for the language they use, and if there's language that talks about how an internship is aimed at developing a student or they care about learning — that's a really good sign," Woodard says. "I can't tell you how many internships are out there that don't even mention that."

Be an attention grabber

"Get attention with your applications. You want to stand out," Woodard says. "If you do that, you'll find that the good internships are the ones that are going to notice that you're being remarkable."

Take risks

Don't do everything by the book. "Lots of internships out there are looking for a carbon copy. They take the same students in the same way," Woodard says. "The way to attract good internships is to take risks."

Collect those contacts

"When I first started as an intern, one of the first things that someone gave me was one of those old Rolodexes, and I have three or four thousand contacts now — some of them I met 15 years ago," Woodard says. "Building those contacts from the beginning is really important when trying to find jobs."

Don't be a generalist

"A lot of students are afraid to be specific [on their cover letters or in interviews]," Woodard says. "Political Science or International Affairs is too broad. What you want to do is be the world's expert on Himalayan tectonics as it relates to Nepali women and girls on a Sunday in the rain — that's what makes them very employable."

Do you know the definitions to all these words? ISTOCK

What words do students look up most often?

Despite the deluge of nonsense words kids these days are using (YOLO, yasss, fleek), every now and then college students have to actually look up a real word.

Dictionary.com has rounded up the top words looked up by college students across the country, and you might be surprised by the words students are searching for. "Many searches from students look at words for homework or research — think affect vs. effect," says Michele Turner, CEO of Dictionary.com. "Once drilled down to specific areas of the country, the data shows that issues affecting each campus are very different."

THIS EQUAL PAY DAY, LEARN THE WORTH OF YOUR WORK

INSIDE HR
VICKI SALEMI
letters@metro.us

If you've been reluctant to broach salary with your boss, this is your time to shine!

That's because tomorrow is Equal Pay Day. Originating in 1996 as a public awareness event to showcase the gap between men's and women's wages, Tuesday was selected to represent how far into the new workweek women must work to earn the total that men earned by the end of the previous week. Sigh.

According to an American Association for University Women (AAUW) report, in 2013 American women earned 78 cents compared to a dollar earned by men for full-time workers.

Here are some ways to shrink the gap and ask for the bank you deserve:

Do your homework before meeting with the boss. ISTOCK

Ask for more

Wayne Gretzky once said, "You miss 100 percent of the shots you don't take." What are the odds your boss will approach you and say, "Congratulations, there's extra money in the budget so I'm going to pour it all into your salary"? But what if you take the shots you previously missed by approaching your boss and showing your worth? Schedule a meeting and arrive prepared. Compile accolades you've received and a long list of accomplishments along with the ammo of your current pay and the going rate to state your case. Specifically ask for a percentage increase of your base compensation.

Be realistic

Keep expectations in check — salary review may not occur until the fall or even year's end, so the conversation may feel like a moot point if budgets don't get tapped. It still matters. Get onto your boss' radar screen that you want to earn more, you deserve it and your work, ethic and attitude speak for themselves.

Do some digging

Knowledge is power. Whether or not you reap pay equality in this job, information will bolster you with power as you pound the pavement for the next one. Conduct informational interviews with peers at other companies and attend industry events.

Ask your HR department

Some companies have transparent policies; others have closed doors. It doesn't hurt to ask. You don't need to say why you're asking, though it's pretty much assumed.

Feel entitled and deserving

Hopefully Equal Pay Day will get you thinking more about money and also feeling more entitled to get paid well for a job well done.

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20
The most important relationships are often the ones that get taken for granted. If you have been neglecting someone, make amends.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21
You can avoid tension in the workplace if you stick to your own duties. Don't get drawn into debates with colleagues if you want to get ahead.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20
Someone will have a profound impact on your life and future. Learn more about a hobby that intrigues you on the Internet.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22
Pay attention to what your friends, family and colleagues want and need. Patience will be required when dealing with elders.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22
Certain people will be extra sensitive today. Diplomacy and tact will ensure that everything goes smoothly. Keep personal matters under your hat.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22
Your commitment and determination will ensure recognition and reward. With your skills and drive, you will achieve success.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22
Children will have a positive effect on your day. Love is on the rise. Turn your focus to romance if you want to improve your personal life.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21 Make positive changes that will make you feel good about your future. A new location or vocation should be considered.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21 You are getting restless and are in need of a change. Get involved in a group that will provide you with a creative outlet that stimulates your senses.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Opportunities for advancement are imminent. Show your versatility if you want to impress people who have power.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Don't compromise your standards by telling people what you think they want to hear. You will earn more respect by being truthful.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20
Business, financial or governmental dealings will be troublesome. Keep all your records up to date and close at hand in case of a dispute.

Letters to the editor

Harsh penalties, not death, for criminals

There should never be any death penalty, not even for Tsarnaev — it's too damn good! Instead all felons, not just killers, should become slaves to pay society back:

1) Work like dogs on chain gangs doing jobs we all both need and hate, like separating recyclables from garbage.

2) Give blood regularly to save lives — also half the liver, which grows back.

3) Be guinea pigs for all medical research, thus eliminating all animal testing (how's that, PETA?) and getting new medicines to market 10 years sooner.

4) Have their wills suspended or rescinded — if they die in prison, everything goes to victims first, the state second and all organs go to those who need them. If all this were law, imagine the deterrent effect! J. ANDREW SMITH

Forgotten historical milestone

The Civil War ended on April 9, 1865. President Abraham Lincoln died on April 15. How disappointing that most media failed to report on the 150th anniversary of both. PBS missed a great opportunity to rerun Ken Burns' excellent series on the Civil War. No wonder many have no sense of history for our great nation.

Quest for the Cup begins

NHL. The Stanley Cup Playoffs kick off this week with the Isles and Rangers firmly in the mix.

What a finish. The final week, days and even hours of the 2014-15 NHL regular season were drama-filled as teams jockeyed for playoff positioning, division titles and their postseason lives in a thrilling completion. The league can only hope the playoffs will provide as much excitement over the next two months as the Stanley Cup playoffs open this week. As first-round games begin on Wednesday, there is only one sure thing to expect — there will be a new champion. The Kings failed to qualify and left the door wide open for a new team to take the throne.

Teams full of surprises

In the Eastern Conference, it's the Ottawa Senators who could pull off some upsets. The Sens have gone 22-4-4 since Feb. 10 and gained entry on the final day of the season on Saturday. Behind goalie Andrew "the Hamburglar" Hammond, the Senators are the hottest team entering the playoffs and the squad that no team in either league would elect to face in the opening round. The Canadiens will no doubt have their hands full.

In the Western Conference, it's the Minnesota Wild who have also ridden their goalie to a sizzling finish. Devan Dubnyk, who was acquired in January, went 27-9-2 with the Wild, who recorded a first-round upset last year, and the team has gone 13-6-1 since the start of March to sky-rocket up the standings to the first wild card. They face the Blues beginning Thursday night.

VLADIMIR TARASENKO GETTY IMAGES

Keep tabs on: Vladimir Tarasenko

The St. Louis Blues' rugged right winger had a break-out season with 37 goals and 36 assists and is immensely talented. He could be the reason the Blues finally advance deep on the Western Conference side of the bracket.

Carey Price has a 1.96 GAA this season. / GETTY IMAGES

Conference predictions

The Blackhawks will get a major boost when Patrick Kane returns. The Wild will test Kane and Chicago, but the depth of the 'Hawks depth up top will be too much for Minnesota in a long series. In the East, look for the Canadiens to outlast the Rangers in seven games in the conference finals as Carey Price outduels Henrik Lundqvist in a low-scoring series.

The champs are here

Don't sleep on Price, as the Montreal netminder had a career year and led the NHL in wins, goals against and save percentage. He'll be especially tough to beat in a seven game series but we like the Blackhawks' chances of doing so. Chicago captain Jonathan Toews will lift Lord Stanley's Cup as the Blackhawks beat the Habs in seven and win their third title in six years.

Bracket busters

The Rangers and Islanders could very well be on a collision course to meet each other in two weeks' time as the NHL playoff bracket has the two New York teams lined up for a potential semifinal meeting. The Islanders first need to get by the Capitals, whom they'll meet in Game 1 in Washington Wednesday (7 p.m., USA), and the Rangers must first dispose of the Penguins in Game 1 at MSG Thursday (7 p.m., NBCSN).

Jenrry Mejia has been suspended 80 games for using PEDs. / GETTY IMAGES

IF YOU'RE GOING TO JUICE, OWN IT

Stop with the lame excuses.

On Saturday, Major League Baseball announced that Mets closer Jenrry Mejia would be suspended 80 games after testing positive for the steroid Stanozolol. Mejia issued a statement through the player's union saying: "I know the rules are the rules, and I will accept my punishment, but I can honestly say I have no idea how a banned substance ended up in my system."

Mejia went on to add, "I have been through a lot in my young career and missed time due to injury. I have worked way too hard to come back and get to where I am, so I would never knowingly put anything in my body that I thought could hold me out further. I am sorry to the Mets organization, my teammates and the fans, as well as my family."

Not only was Mejia on the DL with elbow tightness, but now the closer is out until July and is not eligible for the postseason, if there is one for the Mets. I am sure that Mejia feels bad that he got caught. But the idea that he never knowingly put a steroid in his system is just plain stupid. There is too much money to be made in professional sports to not realize that some players are going to look for an edge. Mejia is a relief pitcher who is still looking to establish himself as a reliable closer. He knows exactly what he puts in his body day in and day out. Simply said: His body and his arm are his career.

He is not the first nor the last who will use this defense, of course. Red Sox slugger David Ortiz defended his reputation on The Players Tribune website last month by saying, "I never knowingly took any steroids." Ortiz tested positive all the way back in 2003 during preliminary drug testing.

I love baseball and I fully understand the popularity of the sport was rebuilt on the backs of steroid users in the late '90s. With that being said, own it if you do it. Don't rationalize or tell me that you had no idea. Mejia had Stanozolol in his system and it did not just show up on its own. It was not slipped to you. You "knowingly" decided to do it. Own it.

If I choose to not go to the gym and eat like every day is Thanksgiving, then I will be fat. That is my choice and I will own it, for better or worse moving forward.

The suspension will cost Mejia $1.1 million and his reputation is toast. He decided to cut a corner and he got caught. He leaves the Mets with a hole in their bullpen that they now have to find an answer for. That is what I know after Mejia "unknowingly" did what he did.

Colon beats Braves with arm, bat

The Mets picked up a 4-3 win over the Braves Sunday in Atlanta, thanks to the pitching and hitting heroics of Bartolo Colon. Not only did Colon pitch a fine seven innings, allowing just three runs on six hits while striking out five, he also registered his first RBI since 2005 with a single to shallow right that brought home Wilmer Flores. Michael Cuddyer also did his part in the win as he hit a two-run homer. The Mets' home opener is today against Philly (1 p.m., SNY). MATT BURKE
